CITY CLUB.
THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING of the MEMBERS will be held in the CLUB HOUSE on MONDAY, 4th February, at 9 P.M.
By ORDER OF THE COMMITTEE.
Hongkong, 28th January, 1895. [123]
TO THE COMMUNITY OF HONGKONG.
NOTICE.

THE PLAGUE RECOGNITION GENERAL COMMITTEE have the honour to lay before the RESIDENTS of HONGKONG the following statement and to appeal for further subscriptions to enable them to redeem their promise in regard to the recognition to be accorded to the numerous workers during last year's plague.
It will be remembered that when the appeal for Funds was first made, it was intimated that a sum of $5,000 would probably be adequate to meet the cost of medals, &c., &c.
As subscriptions flowed in freely from the EUROPEAN COMMUNITY and it was reasonably expected that the CHINESE COMMUNITY would materially help and that the receipts from the PLAGUE CONCERTS would be substantial, it was estimated that a sum of $6,000 would result from the liberality of the public.
Acting on this estimate and being guided as to the probable cost of medals by an expert, the Committee increased by 50 per cent. the number of Gold Medals to be awarded.
It now transpires that the receipts of the Committee upon the CHINESE COMMUNITY and upon the PLAGUE CONCERTS was misplaced, as, instead of sums of $3,000 and $1,000, stated at the time to be the sums derivable from these two sources, the total amounts actually received or still due are only $245 and $415 respectively; in addition to this, the estimate of the charge for medals locally ascertained has proved to be wide of the mark.
The Committee are in a position to state that the cost of medals as they are now advised will be about $5,500, that the plate, &c., will cost $1,800 and that a sum of at least $700 will be required for letters of thanks, contribution to the Italian Convent and other outgoings.
Under the above circumstances, the Committee make a fresh appeal to the generosity of the COMMUNITY for a sum of $3,000 at least, and trust that it will not be incumbent on them to go back on the understanding to which they have been committed by speech and record.
E. J. ACKROYD,
Chairman of General Committee.

Amongst these are 10,000 Cantonese recruited in the South, the last batch arriving by the Kuanyang on her recent trip from Hongkong. Viceroy Chang's well-known patriotism and probably have brought these Cantonese to enlist freely for the North. The Nanyang fleet, which consists of six large sized serviceable corvettes averaging 15 knots, has been further equipped with quick-firing guns of large calibre, especially those firing sixty-pound shot. The Viceroy has also telegraphed for a number of returned American students who possess a naval education and experience, inviting them to join the Nanyang fleet, and declaring that "he wants men who are not afraid to die." The junior officers most of whom have "bought" their berths in times of peace and doubtless are quite as anxious to leave the fleet as the Viceroy is to displace them, are to be replaced by the senior officers from the Nanking naval academy. The disaffected clique of Foochow horn men of the late Pei-hien class in the North which succeeded in driving away Admiral Ichi, managed to disgust a number of high-spirited, smart and promising young lieutenants amongst the American students, who are mostly Cantonese, and these resigned their places several years ago, many beginning life again in mercantile positions. These young and patriotic officers have now been invited to join the Nanyang fleet, and amongst those responding to the Viceroy's call is the late Pei-hien class, who served with distinction as a junior officer on the Chinese ship Yangtze at the battle of Pagoda Anchorage, against the French fleet, in 1884.

In regard to the statement from Cheloo the other day that a Japanese vessel had been struck by a shell from the Whitaker forts, we are informed that these facts are under the command of a number of officers from the Pelyang fleet, each having been in charge of a naval movement, assisted by the requisite number of trained blue-jackets to man the guns. It is also reported that the battery which fired this shell was under the command of Lieutenant Taito Chikunori, chief gunnery officer of the Chiyen (a returned American student), who was indeed the best gunnery lieutenant in the fleet. The forts being given over to the naval officers of the Pelyang fleet, and the garden proper has been drilled incessantly in maneuvers to repel attacks on the landward side of the port.

At the recent review of the naval brigade at Kowloon near this king, before the new sailing ship Admiral, more than 500 men were assembled, including the custom of the Admiral, the Admiral was exercised and inspected in proficiency in sharp-shooting and volley firing only. This is due to the progressiveness of the Viceroy Chang, whose instructions to his army in the Chiyen are to the effect that everything else must be left aside and give place to proficiency with rifle and gun.

A telegram from the North, received in Shanghai on the 25th inst., states that the Viceroy Li Hsun-chang is determined to preserve Weihaiwei at all costs. He has already ordered a strong brigade of some 15,000 foreign drilled troops amongst whose officers are also a number of foreigners, to make forced marches for Weihaiwei and these troops are expected to arrive in the vicinity of Cheloo early in February. The troops from the South, now en route for Tientsin, are also to be diverted eastwards to Weihaiwei, and are said to number not less than 20,000 men.

An Imperial decree of the 23rd instant runs as follows:—"The degraded Taito, Kung Chao-yu, who by a former edict had been ordered to be arrested and sent under escort to Peking for punishment for having run away from Port Arthur when that place fell, and for hiding for a time at Cheloo, has, according to a memorial of the Board of Punishment, arrived at the capital at last, and our instructions are now asked with reference to the said person. As Kung Chao-yu has been guilty of gross misbehavior, he is deserving of punishment. We now command the said Board to make a strict investigation into the charge against the said Kung Chao-yu and let the law take its course with reference to him."

According to an Imperial edict of the 23rd instant, the Viceroy has appointed Wang Wen-shan, Viceroy of the Yü Kwei provinces, recently called up to Peking, to be another Assistant Imperial High Commissioner of Peking defences. As this makes the fifth Assistant Commissionership we are afraid that it will be another instance of the homely adage that "too many cooks spoil the broth."

NEWCHWANG NOTES.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

January 1st.
Since writing to you on Christmas Day, there has not been a battle of any consequence. Skirmishes between scouting parties constantly take place and a wonderful story is told of the doings of the "Frontier Hunters," about 4,000 of whom have come from the north under the leadership of the celebrated Hsu Chang-shun. They are well mounted, well armed, and are excellent marksmen, and are reported to have attacked the Japanese last week at night time, and to have killed about a thousand of them with very little loss to themselves. Very little credence can be attached to this, but there is no doubt if these men act as they propose to do, viz., keep out of sight of the enemy in daylight, and away from the invaders, they may be very troublesome to the invaders.

General Sung with his army, which must now number about 40,000 men, still occupies the villages north, north-west, and north-east of us. We can see some soldiers and tents a few miles off, and supplies of ammunition and grain are constantly passing through the settlement. On the last day of the old year, we could hear constant firing from both small and large guns, which was evidently taking place a few miles to the north-east of us. At first we thought a battle was being fought, but soon saw that it was the news that General Sung was training his soldiers, and telling some guns, which had recently arrived from Tientsin. The big guns at the south-west fort were also being fired, so we have something to interest us, and prevent us sleeping too much this winter.

The Japanese northern army has captured and is fortifying the town of Anshanchang, which is about half-way between Hainan and Liaoyang. They are ill content to strengthen the forts at Hainan. We have heard no really reliable news of the movements of the southern army, who are reported by some to have gone east. Probably by this time they will have joined Marshal Yamagata's forces, for the advance on Moukden. Between which city and Liaoyang there must be at least 10,000 Chinese and Manchurian troops. With this large army at Moukden, and Sung's army at Tienchwanstai, the Chinese ought to be able to offer some resistance to the enemy. The natives here say that at last their turn has come, and the Japanese are to be wiped out, Hainan is to be recaptured, and other wonderful things are to happen. We shall see. Far worse than any enemy must be the weather, which at present prevails throughout the province. On Wednesday last, the 26th ult., there was a blizzard, which must have severely tried all men and beasts. It commenced with rain, then changed into sleet, and next came very small and blinding snow, with bitterly cold north winds. This was followed by two or three days of very cold weather with the thermometer at or below zero every night, and during the last three days the wind has been from the south, causing the snow, especially where much trodden on, to thaw. All this must severely try the Japanese, as no foot gear, however good, will stand such weather, and we expect to hear that before Moukden has been reached, thousands of the Japanese have died or been rendered unfit for active service. The cold-est month has yet to come, and already constant reports are coming in about the terrible sufferings of the Japanese from frost bites, and other troubles of the feet.

It is interesting to watch the troops, from time to time, marching through the settlement. They pass along the narrow roadway between H.B. M.'s Consulate and the bows of the gunboats. On the one side gaily and comfortably dressed soldiers, with a beautiful white bull's eye on the front and back of their uniforms, which must prove very convenient targets for the enemy, flags flying, trumpets blaying, and here and there a mounted officer; on the other side the earthworks, round the gunboats with the sentries marching up and down, and the officers on the alert, ready for any emergency. Above the earthworks can be seen the main batteries and machine guns, and high above all, in the fighting top, there are three masts looking but very useful machine guns. In addition, there are also three machine guns mounted on carriages, ready for service in any part of the settlement, so people need not be surprised that we feel secure, and have been able to spend a very pleasant Christmas. Our usual New Year's Ball took place, and was thoroughly enjoyed, and in wishing each other a Happy New Year, we one and all trust that war may have ceased, before many months more, as although it is interesting, it is awful to think of the suffering going on all round us. From all sides we hear of great poverty and distress amongst the people, and from towns and villages the residents are being frightened of the oncoming soldiers and the enemy.

Last week a native of Honan warned the merchants that their property was not safe in the foreign godowns, and unless it was removed to the native town the godowns would be looted. He was promptly arrested, and without any delay, was beheaded. His head is at present hanging in a cage at the east gate, which is at the end of a foreign settlement.

On the 26th ult. the river at last froze over, and today the natives are crossing in thousands to the extensive reed marsh on the other side. Quickly overpowering the owner and his assistants they are quietly stealing thousands of bundles of reeds, and these will be used for fuel, instead of making them into mats. The owner appealed in vain to the Taito for help; it would have been a very difficult task to prevent the poor people carrying out their design, as every man and boy seemed to be engaged in the task. This will help to tide over the distress of the next few months, as little or no millet stalk is coming into the market.

From eye-witnesses and others a fairly accurate account of the battle of Kangwanstai is obtainable. General Sung, after leaving Kichou, retired to the village of Kangwanstai, where, as quickly as possible, he threw up earth and snow works. On the 18th of December his scouts came across those of the enemy and a few shots were exchanged. Next day the main body of the enemy advanced and offered battle to the Chinese. General Sung's army, numbering about 17,000, was arranged in three divisions. In the village itself General Sung took up his position, and directed the movements. General Ma with 3,500 men was with him. General Liu with 7,500 men occupied a good position about two miles to the north of the village, and the heavy artillery was about the same distance to the south-east. The Japanese were first seen at 8 a.m. advancing from the east, and the heavy guns opened fire on them two and three miles distant. Although some of the fire was well directed, the Japanese held their ground, and when the main body, numbering about 10,000 men were seen, about noon, steadily advancing, General Sung ordered the artillery to retire, leaving the capture of the guns. General Liu with his troops also fell back on the fortifications round Kangwanstai. In the afternoon the Japanese had advanced to within 2 1/2 miles of the village, and obtained good cover in a small wood, and from that position made good use of their artillery, which quickly knocked down the houses and earthworks. As evening came on the Chinese abandoned their position, and retired towards Tienchwanstai; the Japanese did not pursue them, but returned to Hainan. It is impossible to discover the number of killed and wounded. Roughly speaking, about 200 on either side were killed. The Japanese loss was as heavy as the Chinese, owing to the good cover the latter enjoyed at the commencement of the battle. All the Japanese wounded were carried to Hainan the day of the fight, and next morning the frozen corpses were buried. The Chinese wounded and dead were left on the plain, and a few of the former have been carried to this town.

(FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.)

December 31st.
General Sung has moved from Newchwang to Tienchwanstai, and General Ma from the latter to the former. Song's nephew, who is in command of the left flank at present, is stationed at Hotayenstai, which is situated 5 miles east of us, and at present he is engaged in making two embankments of snow and reeds from the stone bridge, which is 3 miles east of Hotayenstai, for the purpose of using them as a rough fortification to repel the advance of the Japanese. Up to date there are at least 20,000 Japanese inside and outside of Hainan. According to reports from various sources, most of their men are suffering greatly from the effects of the cold, many being shoeless, and as fuel is scarce, they are utilizing Chinese furniture for that purpose. There was a heavy fall of snow on the 26th inst. and the wind veering round to the north, we had one or two days of very cold weather, the river setting on the 26th inst. at noon.

January 2nd.
Business is quite at a standstill, as the native hongs will simply not stir, and the present trouble between China and Japan remains, especially round about this vicinity, there will be nothing done in the agricultural line; as it is, thousands of farmers have made northwards, their reason for going is simply that they cannot remain, as the soldiers are here, there, and everywhere, and just plunder along their way. My private opinion is that the Japanese will not come down to the port at present, as there would be no gain, the first reason being that they are ice-bound and, secondly, I don't think they wish to show us their movements. Han Pian-wi, better known as the great rebel chief, is at present at Moukden, he has under him 5,000 men, who are all supposed to be at Moukden, and when called upon are all there. For years the Chinese Government have been after Han Pian-wi, but General Sung, the Commander-in-Chief of the Chinese army, has promised him, that if he is successful, he will immortalize the throne by his alliance with the yellow jacket and pea-coat. THE GREAT "I. G."

The number of Vanity Fair received by English mail to-day contains a cartoon of Sir Robert Hart, the famous Inspector-General of the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs. The following details of Sir Robert's unique and distinguished career are given:—

"Eldest son of the late Henry Hart, of Portland, he was born nearly sixty years ago, and, having taken in and been given two degrees at Queen's College, Belfast, he joined the British Consular Service in China, just before the Sino-Japanese War broke out. Since then he has filled so many offices so adequately that he was made a C.M.G. a dozen years ago, a K.C.M.G. two years later, and a G.C.M.G. in 1889; while last year he was further honored into Sir Robert Hart, Bart., of Kilmorland, county Armagh, and Peking, China. He was first a Supernumerary Interpreter, and after being Assistant Consul in various places he was asked to be a Chinese servant, and became Deputy-Inspector of Customs in Canton, whence he was promoted to be Inspector-General of Chinese Customs in Peking some thirty years ago. He still holds that office, for though he was gazetted Extraordinary and Visiting Plenipotentiary for Great Britain to the Emperor of China and also to the King of Korea nearly ten years ago, he did not take up that appointment; preferring his own sphere of great influence and greater power. As a Chinese Minister he has the Red Ruyi (the Great Seal), the Purple Feather, and the Double Dragon (Second Division, First Class) and the Ancestral Rank of First Class of First Order for Three Generations (by Chinese Letters Patent). He is also the proud owner of Swedish, Belgian, Roman, French, Italian, Portuguese, and Austrian Orders; a Fellow of various English and foreign learned societies, and many other things. Altogether he is a very big man indeed, who has been employed in the Order, Decorations, and Degrees of all sorts and conditions, and is perhaps the most peculiarly honored Englishman of this century."

"He is an integral part of China, and every book that is written of the Empire includes frequent allusions to him, while all of them put together give a less than adequate idea of his greatness, his abilities, his ways, and his resources. He is certainly the most powerful man in China, and he has enjoyed no more than eighteen months of holiday during the last five-and-thirty years, so that he is quite unknown in England. Yet it is clear that he did well for himself when, after five years of the British Consular Service, he accepted office in the Chinese Customs. There were then but three ports open to Europeans; there are now more than thirty, and his position and power have, of course, grown in proportion. He has under him an army, and a navy of armed cruisers, and something like half a million of men placed at his disposal for their efficient conduct. He is a very great financial administrator and a wonderful organizer, who has worked up the Customs Service to the highest state of machine-like perfection. He is also an absolute autocrat, and the thousands under him know it, and how slow to him accordingly."
